Farm, Garden & Household.

THE FARM.

The dew-drops sparkle on the grass, The peewees loudly cry.
The sunset spreads a scari of flame Against the western sky; And Mable, half a mile from home,

Is calling the cows to come. In the stillness of the gloaming Her voice sounds sweet and clear; The cattle from the pastures turn And with slow tread draw near-Bessie and Pearl and Dapple Crest, Lady Devere and all the rest.

THE DAILY GRIND OF WG-MAN'S WORK.

The quiet fidelity with which a woman dishwashes her life away for her husband and children is a marvel of endurance. Here is the servitude of woman heaviest-no sooner is her work done than it requires to be done again. Men take jobs, work on them. finish them, and they are over for good and all. The prospect of ending them and drawing pay for the labor is alluring, but no such allurements are held out for the wife. She washes Monday after Monday the same garments until there is nothing more of them to wash; then they are replaced by others of new material just like them, and the rubbing and wringing goes on forever. She mends the stockings with tireless fidelity, the same holes meeting her-gaze week after week, for if there is a darned place in a sock "he" invariably puts his irrepressible toe through it. Every morning the rooms are put in order, only to be in the wildest disorder by the time night falls. There are no jobs, each one different; there is no pay day. The same socks, the same washing, the same room, every time. There is too little brightness in the lives of women in the country. They have too little help in their domestic occupations. The "nurse" in a house where there is a baby to care for ought to be set down as one of the regular expenses as much as the potatoes for the family. A mother's health both of body and mind is worth more than additional acres of land, or finer live stock. The heart should not be allowed to grow old. Life should not have lost its charm, the heart its spirit, and the body its elasticity at forty years. And yet how many women are faded and wan, and shattered in mind and health, long before they are forty. All the joy of life is not in youth's morning. If we so will it, we can to the last moment of life be at least negatively happy .-

SWEET ENSILAGE.

American Tarmer.

The subject of sweet ensilage was well discussed last winter and spring. I know of a number of silos which have been filled with the veiw of testing Dr. Miles' theory, and the value of the material. The experiments should be carefully written down, so that the conditions may be known. Then when the silo is opened, the experimenter will have all the facts before him. The object aimed at in waking sweet ensilage, is to start an active fermentation at the very first, when more or less air is present, so that the heat thus raised shall destroy the germs of that slow er fermentation which takes place when air is excluded. The degree of heat which may be generated in vegetable substances in the presence of the right quantities of air and moisture is somehting wonderful. The heat of boiling water is readily attained, and spontan ous combustion no doubt sometimes occurs from this cause. Hence when a heat sufficient to kill the germs of fermentation has been reached say one handred and twenty-five degrees to one hundred and thirty degrees, it is of course policy to check it at once by excluding the air, because fermentation goes on at the expence of the material itself. The only difficulty, which, so far as I can learn, has presented itself, is that of securing a uniform heat throughout the entire mass-in the corners, and along the side, as well as in the of the middle silo .- Col. M. C WELD in Americun Agriculturist for November.
